

Economist to speak at Centralia College

The Centralia College Foundation and Union Bank of California are bringing the most current economic outlook for the new year to this area. The important presentation will provide local business and industry leaders and members of the public with an expert's perspective on the fiscal climate and predicted business conditions for the coming year.

The program takes place Monday, Jan. 28, 2013, beginning at 5 p.m. in room 121 of the Science Center on the Centralia College campus. The forecast will be presented by Todd Lowenstein, Union Bank's senior portfolio manager.

Union Bank continues its involvement in managing investment accounts for the Centralia College Foundation.

The Jan. 28 meeting is free and open to the public, according to Julie Johnson, director of Donor and Alumni Relations for the Centralia College Foundation.

"Our relationship with Union Bank has given us an opportunity to bring current economic forecasts to the region," Johnson said. "We're always pleased to share this information as part of our commitment of support to the community." Johnson said the presentation should also prove beneficial to individuals who manage their own investment or retirement accounts.

For further information about the event, please call the foundation at (360) 736-9391, ext. 290.